FROM JOE FEAKES, PCR DEVELOPMENT DIRECTOR

This is truly an exciting time of year. It is a time for friends and family; a time to celebrate old traditions and perhaps begin new ones. It is a time for reflection, evaluation, and planning.

It is not unusual for each of us amidst the hustle and bustle of the holiday season to take a few moments to reflect upon the past 12 months. As for me and my family, there have been ups and downs, but we came through both together. We enjoyed the ups and learned from the downs.

What about next year and beyond? What opportunities are available to make our family, our community, and our world a better place? We all share one common opportunity. Our involvement with PCR makes us aware of the role PCR plays in the lives of our community members who have developmental differences.

PCR has had a very successful year. New programs were developed and old ones expanded. More community members enjoy our programs. We have added more trained skilled staff and additional volunteers to help provide a safe and therapeutic environment so that our members can experience everyday joys and personal growth and have opportunities for community involvement.

What about next year and beyond? We continue to rely on your commitment to PCR to carry on this most important work. We need your time, talent, and treasure. A year end gift is one way to show you value PCR's unique contribution to your life. In addition, please consider including PCR in your financial planning list as one of your New Year's Resolutions. PCR can provide information on a variety of planned giving opportunities that may fulfill your family's intentions and at the same time ensure PCR can serve our community for years to come. We always recommend that you consult with your financial advisor when making these decisions.

We extend our sincere gratitude to you for all you have done for PCR and our members. May you and your loved ones enjoy all the rich blessings of the holiday season and a happy and healthful New Year.
